BRADLEY COOPER has learned the way to his sweetie's heart is through her stomach!

The "Hangover" hunk is prepping for a movie role by taking cooking lessons from "Hell's Kitchen" chef Gordon Ramsay, and sources say it's heating up his romance with British model Suki Waterhouse.

"Bradley has become a whiz in the kitchen," said a close friend.

"NOT EVEN A YEAR AGO, HE could barely boil an egg. But after intensive lessons with Gordon and studying classic French techniques, Bradley is whipping up complicated dishes like coq au vin and beef bourguignon.

"He plans elaborate date nights with expensive French wine, appetizers of clams casino and entrees of stuffed lobster tail and fresh pastas made from scratch. Suki is a big foodie, and when Bradley goes to work in the kitchen, she just melts."

In the upcoming film "Chef," the 38-year-old actor plays a drug-addicted former chef who gets clean and tries to relaunch his career. The Oscar-nominated "Silver Linings Playbook" star was previously married to "Blue Bloods" beauty Jennifer Esposito. He's since dated Renee Zellweger and Jennifer Aniston, and hooked up with 21-year-old Suki in February.

As The ENQUIRER has reported, Cooper's overprotective mom Gloria fears Suki is using her son to jump-start a Hollywood career. But the relationship still seems to be cooking on all burners.

"Bradley is raving to friends that food is the best aphrodisiac," said the source. "And he loves showing off his new skills to an adoring girlfriend."

THE sizzling sex tape Monica Lewinsky made for then-President Bill Clinton will soon be on exhibit at the Museum of Sex!

The ENQUIRER sparked a furor by revealing the contents of the bombshell tape, and now museum officials are making the ex-White House intern's saucy sex talk available for the world to hear.

"This is a historically significant artifact," Mark Snyder, the museum's director of exhibitions told The ENQUIRER during an on-site visit in New York City.

"We want to let our guests hear Monica speak. We believe that by listening to her words to Clinton while in the midst of their affair will help humanize the parties involved as real people."

MONICA WAS JUST 21 WHEN SHE arrived at the White House in July 1995 as an unpaid intern for Clinton's chief of staff.

She's claimed her sexual relationship with the president began in November 1995, and she likely recorded the three-minute, 47-second sex tape in November 1997.

Monica played the tape over the phone to her then-pal Linda Tripp, who recorded it on Nov. 20.

The audiotape drips with sexual innuendo as Monica flip-flops from hot-blooded vixen to smitten schoolgirl to jealous lover with Clinton.

At one point, she coos: "I could take all my clothes off and start... well...I know you wouldn't enjoy that?"

Monica also got very demanding, saying: "So since I know you will be alone tomorrow evening, I have two proposals for you, neither of which is you NOT seeing me."

She also suggests a way for them to secretly meet. It begins with Clinton stepping out of the Oval Office, at which point she says: "Then you quickly sneak back and then in the meantime, I quickly sneak over and then we have a nice little visit for, you know, 15 minutes or half an hour. Whatever you want."

Later she adds: "So, those are two proposals and you can't

EVA'S MARRIAGE ULTIMATUM TO RYAN

TIRED of waiting for Ryan Gosling to pop the question, Eva Mendes gave the Canadian actor a stinging ultimatum, ordering him to put a ring on her finger – or else.

The 39-year-old "Training Day" beauty is demanding that the 32-year-old hunk propose to her by the two-year anniversary of their romance, which is only a month away.

"Ryan and Eva are on the rocks over his refusal to make a solid commitment to her," revealed an insider. "He's been dragging his feet on proposing."

"He's obsessed with his career and claims he can't focus on anything else at the moment. Until now she hasn't pressured him, but she's just a few months shy of 40 and told Ryan that if he doesn't want to start a family with her, she wants to find a man who's ready and willing."

The talented duo first met in 2011 on the set of "The Place Beyond the Pines," and sparks flew. But while filming their upcoming movie, "How to Catch a Monster" – which Ryan wrote and directed – they've been bickering, a source says.

AS THE ENQUIRER REPORTED, the couple's fall 2013 marital plans were derailed when Eva started fuming that Ryan was bossing her around on the set too much.

But now the Latina bombshell has cooled down and is trying to enlist the help of the "Crazy, Stupid, Love" star's mom to seal the deal.

Said the source: "Eva knows Ryan's mom is anxious to become a grandmother and is hoping she'll talk sense into him."

Gosling and Mendes have been dating since 2011, and she's ready to start a family, says an insider

“YOU won’t get the kids!” With those defiant words, a determined Catherine Zeta-Jones drew a line in the sand, letting her husband Michael Douglas know she’ll fight tooth and nail for custody of their two children if he files for divorce, say sources.

Just two weeks ago, The ENQUIRER broke the news that the two superstars are leading increasingly separate lives, and friends predict that divorce may be their only option.

Now, insiders believe that a behind-the-scenes custody battle over the couple’s kids – son Dylan, 13, and daughter Carys, 10 – could turn nasty and explode.

“The gloves are coming off as Catherine and Michael go head-to-head over who will be granted primary custody of their children,” disclosed an insider.

“Michael has already made peace with the notion of handing over a huge chunk of his fortune, but he’s telling friends Catherine will get the kids ‘over my dead body.’”

But strong-willed Catherine fired back that there’s no way she’s giving them up!

As The ENQUIRER revealed, Michael and Catherine secretly split a year ago in a trial separation, and a divorce could mean an ugly fight

Catherine, who suffers from a bipolar mental disorder, has already shown signs that a furious divorce and custody battle could be fast approaching.

“When Catherine returned to a mental facility recently because of her ongoing disorder, she wouldn’t even trust Michael to watch the children for a few weeks,” revealed the insider.

“Instead, she had her mother Pat fly in from Wales to watch them.”

Catherine has been leaning on 65-year-old Pat, and Michael even bought her a $5 million home, not far from their Bedford, N.Y., mansion.

“Michael and Pat don’t get along, but Catherine is digging in, keeping her around,” said the insider. “She with parenting

Michael’s marriage to Diandra ended in divorce but produced son Cameron are officially split.”

Catherine, 43, seems to be in no mood for ammunition. Catherine is aware that Michael has admitted to putting his “career first” before fathering his troubled son Cameron, 34, who is serving nine years in prison on a couple of drug raps.

In addition, a source says she claims Michael is simply too busy to handle primary custody because of his “exceptional work schedule.”

THE “BEHIND THE CANDELABRA” star recently completed the movie “Las Vegas,” just finished filming “And So It Goes,” and has two more pictures lined up.

Michael, who has a net worth of $300 million, hasn’t been photographed together since an April 22 awards gala in New York City, and Catherine was on her own at the recent red carpet premieres for her movie “Red 2” in New York and Los Angeles.

While Catherine’s representatives deny reports of trouble in the marriage, the couple’s behavior is raising questions.

On July 17, the Academy Award-winning actress indicated a family vacation was being planned at their multimillion-dollar spread in Canada.

Not long after that, Michael and their youngsters were spotted enjoying their 250-acre waterfront estate in Quebec’s Mont-Tremblant region – but Catherine was nowhere in sight.

“It’s a wonderful place for the whole family to enjoy,” said a source. “But locals were disappointed when only Michael and the kids were spotted at the end of July.

“He came in with them to eat at Milly’s restaurant in the village on July 31, but there was no sign of Catherine.”

And while Michael, 68, made an August 10 posting on Facebook saying: “I’m on holiday in Canada,” The ENQUIRER discovered that Catherine calls with her mom at the Redfish.

Speculation about the crumbling state of the nearly 13-year marriage was fanned when Michael made some startling remarks to a British newspaper in early August.

Talking about his ex-wife Diandra, Cameron’s mother, Douglas confided: “...I’m very fond of my first wife. But we should have ended that marriage eight or 10 years earlier. It took me too long to realize that if you go to a marriage counselor to resolve problems, it’s in (the counselor’s) interest to keep the marriage going.”

Said the insider: “Michael may be sending signals he’s not going to repeat that mistake with Catherine – that if the marriage is over, he’s going to get on with a divorce sooner than later.”

A friend told The ENQUIRER:

“Family members are pushing for them to return to their home in Bermuda, where they’ve had many happy memories over the years, in a last-ditch effort to work out their differences and try to save the marriage.”

Although sources have previously noted that Michael loves Catherine, it may already be too late. Also, Michael and Catherine share a passion for their children.

“Michael doesn’t care nearly as much about losing his multimillion-dollar fortune as losing his precious offspring,” said the insider. “Getting a second shot at being a good dad and watching the kids grow up is what Michael lives for. But Catherine is a fierce mama bear who will fight for her cubs until the end.”

HEARTWARMING DEED

SCRAP YARD SAMARITAN!

Magda Castillo happily plants a kiss on scrap yard manager Mike Downer

I couldn't believe it. God was smiling on me”

Magda forgot her life savings were stashed in the appliance

— hands back $5,000 FOUND IN DISCARDED FRIDGE

A SUPER honest scrap yard manager didn't think twice when he found $5,000 in a discarded refrigerator. He tracked down the distressed owner and handed her the cold hard cash.

“Keeping all that money didn't even occur to me,” said Mike Downer.

“I believe in God and was raised in the church. You have to do the right thing.”

The feel-good story began when 52-year-old grandmother Magda Castillo bought a new refrigerator

“I kept the money in the fridge because I thought it would be safe,” said Magda, who earns $300 a week cleaning a funeral home in Queens, N.Y. “But that night I was thinking about paying my mortgage and my bills when I suddenly remembered my money was in the old one!”

The dough accounted for Magda's entire life savings, and just after dawn the next day, July 19, she parked herself outside Atlantic Recycling in a hope she'd find it back. Tow-truck driver Fred Alsterberg was the first one to arrive. After hearing frantic Magda's story, he hunted for the fridge amid the piles of scrap metal and car parts. But he couldn't find it, and a dejected Magda left.

“SHE WAS DEVASTATED,” RECALLED Alsterberg.

Downer arrived 15 minutes later, at which point Alsterberg explained the situation.

and decided to junk the old one.

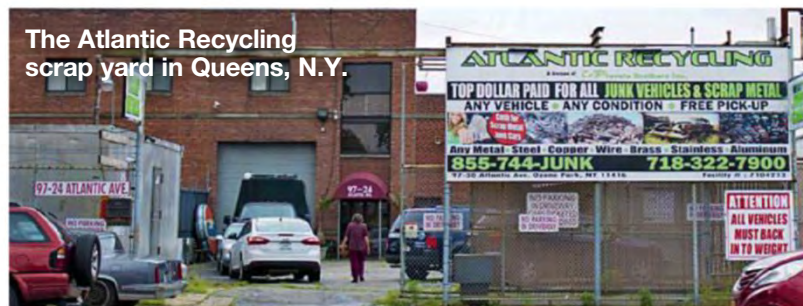

the appliance had been dumped,” Downer said. “If I hadn't been looking and found it pancaked between two cars.”

The two men pried the refrigerator open and out tumbled two plastic grocery bags stuffed with stacks of $100, $50 and $20 bills – totaling $5,020.

“Magda hadn't left a number but we knew she must live nearby because she walked to the yard,” said Downer. “So we drove around looking for her.”

The good Samaritans had no luck, but they didn't let that stop them.

The Atlantic Recycling scrap yard in Queens, N.Y.

They turned to the local media for help.

“I saw the story on TV about the money being found in the fridge and the scrap yard people looking for me, and my heart nearly stopped,” said Magda.

“I couldn't believe it! God was smiling on me.”

The next morning, a delighted Magda headed back to the scrap yard to claim her cash.

As Downer handed her the money, she gushed: “Can I kiss you? I can hardly believe it's true. Now I can pay my bills. Thank you, Jesus!”

Magda gave him a $300 reward, and both men were awarded citations of honor by Queens Borough President Helen Marshall in recognition of their diligence and honesty.

“It's not every day that someone at a job finds $5,000 in cash and returns it,” said Marshall. “These men are heroes.”

"His ROYAL HIGHNESS, PRINCE OF CAMBRIDGE, JULY 22, 2013"

A limited edition commemorative figurine captures the moment the world first met the future King of England.

Yours exclusively from Hamilton!

For nine months, the world watched and waited when St. James Palace announced that Prince William and Princess Catherine would soon be parents.

And finally, on a warm summer's day, the future King of England made his appearance. And just one day later, the proud mother introduced the newborn prince to the world. Now you can join in the celebration with an exclusive figurine that commemorates this historic moment!

Individually sculpted and painted by hand!

Inspired by first photos taken as Princess Catherine emerged from the hospital, Master Craftsmen beautifully recreate each tender detail — from the gentle waves of her flowing hair ... to her simple yet elegant baby-blue polka-dot dress ... to the loving baby swaddled in a white blanket. Every nuance is carefully sculpted entirely by hand, then hand-painted by talented artisans using only the finest of brushes. And to honor the baby's paternal grandmother, Princess Diana, your figurine features a sapphire-look faux gem ring that replicates the stunning piece of jewelry treasured by both Diana and Catherine.

Don't miss out on this historic collecting opportunity!

Due to the timeliness of this event, and to ensure this historic moment is accurately recreated entirely by hand, this one-of-a-kind figurine is strictly limited to only 95 casting days and will begin shipping on or before December 15, 2013. Each issue is hand-numbered and arrives with a Certificate of Authenticity.

Reserve your historic figurine today for just two installments of $24.99* (plus a total of $9.00 shipping and service). Only your first installment will be due prior to shipment. Our 365-Day Guarantee assures your complete satisfaction or your money back.

BRITNEY DEVASTATED

ENQUIRER EXCLUSIVE

BRITNEY SPEARS went berserk when she heard that her ex-husband Kevin Federline married his baby mama Victoria Prince in a top secret ceremony at a Las Vegas hotel suite, a family insider told The ENQUIRER.

"When Britney was told the news, she screamed uncontrollably," revealed an insider.

"Then she collapsed in tears. The wedding caught her by surprise. She wasn't invited and she didn't even get a call from Kevin to let her know he was marrying Victoria.

"Britney had to hear about it from one of K-Fed's friends after the ceremony was over.

"It was hard for Britney because she's long suffered from the delusion that she and Kevin would one day get back together and raise their two boys (Sean, 7, and Jayden, 6)."

BRITNEY'S DIVORCE FROM KEVIN

was finalized back in 2007, but she never abandoned her fantasy reunion, even after she got engaged to her agent Jason Trawick in December 2011, said the insider.

Since they split, Britney has been dating 27-year-old David Lucado, a former bartender and insurance agent who now works for a Los Angeles legal firm.

But Britney's new romance apparently didn't soften the blow of Federline's Aug. 10 marriage, even though the bride and groom first met nearly five years ago and have a 2-year-old daughter, Jordan.

"Even after Jordan was born, Britney held onto her fantasy of reconciliation with Kevin," said the insider. "But the wedding has crushed her, and she's angry that she definitely won't be getting Kevin back."

Britney also finds it hard to accept that the couple is essentially raising her boys.

"Sean and Jayden even call Victoria 'Mommy,' and it sets Britney blazing with anger," said the source. "She's called them up screaming about it."

Under conditions of her court-ordered conservatorship, the troubled singer is allowed to have only part time visitation with her sons and only when a bodyguard or nanny is present.

K-Fed, 35, and Victoria, 30, were married in a private ceremony in the plush Paradise Tower Penthouse of Las Vegas' Hard Rock Hotel.

Dressed in a beautiful white wedding dress, Victoria looked radiant as she read her own vows in front of a minister.

Former backup dancer Kevin also looked dashing. He's dropped about 50 pounds and looks much like he did before he became engaged to Britney in 2004, and the source said: "That's just another source saying she's her!"

In March 2012, Kaley called off her engagement to Josh "Lazie" Resnik, a once-troubled heavy metal rocker who's now an addiction specialist. As everyone watched, he expertly maneuvered car and trailer into the tight space on the very first try. Tension built as Melissa climbed into the driver's seat – but everyone gasped, then cheered like crazy, when she backed the trailer into the cramped space lickety-split! Because they'd both managed the feat, the winner was decided by tape-measuring who'd gotten closest to the curb. And the WINNER was... Melissa! She felt bad and told the red-faced stunt guy she'd foot the beer bill, but added, 'Don't ever doubt me – I'm a farmer's daughter. I've been backing up trucks and trailers my whole life!'

■ Pals of "True Blood" star ALEXANDER SKARSGARD say he's notoriously bad at putting names to faces – even when the face is pretty and famous – but the Swedish-born actor blew the minds of buddies at an LA coffee shop when a sizzling hottie with super-short hair and even shorter shorts waltzed up and said "Hi," gushed about loving the new season of "True Blood" – then flashed a big smile, purred that she'd see him around and split for the exit. Said My SpyWitness: "Alex just nodded politely as she walked away until one pal blurted, 'Dude! You don't know who that WAS?'" Alex looked blank until the guy sputtered: "That was MILEY CYRUS, you dumba!" Suddenly horrified he might have offended a fellow star, Alex ran to catch up before she exited, gushing, "It was good to see you, MILEY – please have a great day!" Said the source: "Miley, smiling like she knew Alex was covering his butt, said, 'It's all right if you don't remember who I am!' – then reminded him they'd met THREE times at Hollywood club Beacher's Madhouse." OUCH! ...And how was YOUR week?

Tom Selleck

FIGHTING CRIPPLING ARTHRITIS

FORMER “Magnum, P.I.” tough guy Tom Selleck is hiding a painful medical secret from fans of his hit police drama, “Blue Bloods.”

The still-handsome 68-year-old star suffers from arthritis that becomes so excruciating at times he requires a stunt double just to film ordinary scenes.

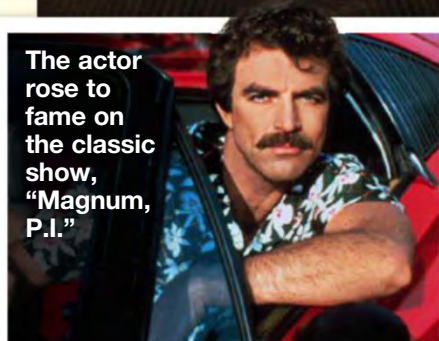

“Tom’s days as the car-jumping scuba-diving action star are a thing of the past,” a source on the New York set of the CBS series told The ENQUIRER.

“He hates that his arthritis slows him down. Like most stars, there’s a stunt double for dangerous action shots, but Tom even uses the guy for simple scenes, like getting in and out of his police car.

“His arthritis bothers him more some days than others.

But Tom’s an old-school, true professional, so he never complains about the pain.

“He’s got a great sense of humor and even jokes with the young actors and crew that he’s not ‘Magnum, P.I.’ anymore.”

The square-jawed, 6-foot-4 actor became a superstar portraying Thomas Magnum, a private investigator living in Oahu, Hawaii, on the classic series from 1980 to 1988.

SELLECK IS PROUD TO BE FILMING the fourth season of “Blue Bloods,” in which he portrays Frank Reagan, a NYPD Police Commissioner who heads an Irish-American family full of police officers. The series also stars Donnie Wahlberg and Bridget Moynahan as two of his three law enforcement children.

Meanwhile, Selleck is one of the 50 million Americans who suffer from arthritis, about 40 percent of whom are over the age of 65. Drugs and steroids offer some relief but there is still no cure. “Tom may not move like he once did, but he’s still a tough guy,” said the set source. “No one mentions his arthritis, and that’s exactly the way he wants it.”

JULIA ROBERTS’ half sister Nancy Motes has finally confirmed what ENQUIRER readers have known for years – that the “Pretty Woman” star continually scolded her over her weight!

Making headlines in the U.S. and around the world, Nancy, 37, recently told an interviewer that her famous sibling teased her mercilessly about her appearance.

“WHEN I WAS IN HIGH school and she was an adult, she would just let me know that I was definitely overweight,” said Nancy, who once weighed nearly 300 pounds. She added that it made her “feel incredibly hurt and very sad.”

ENQUIRER readers have known the weighty family history since 2011, when we first shared the story of the sisters’ bickering over Nancy’s expanding waistline. “Julia’s made no secret of the fact that she’s not happy that she’s gotten heavy,” said an insider at the time. “She thinks it’s humiliating for her and the entire family.”

The ENQUIRER broke the news way back in our issue dated June 27, 2011

ENQUIRER readers got scoop on Julia’s weighty feud with sister

We reported that tensions between the sisters came to a head at Nancy’s birthday party in May 2011 at their mother’s home in Pacific Palisades. When Nancy learned that Julia was making unkind comments behind her back, she shot back: “(Bleep) you!”

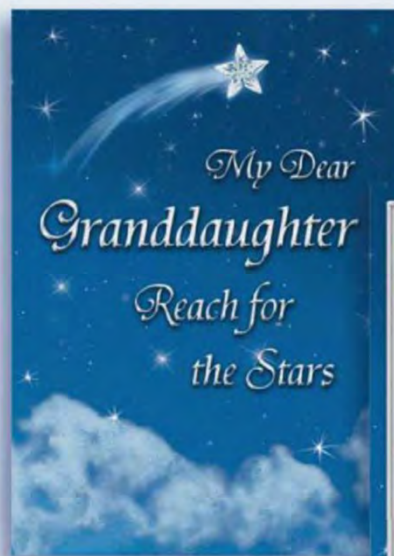

Due to the years of criticism, Nancy underwent gastric bypass surgery in June 2012 and now tips the scales at 155.

The ENQUIRER most recently reported that Julia, 45, planned to skip Nancy’s wedding to fiancé John Dilbeck next year because she hates the groom and doesn’t want to get stuck with the bill.

Said the source: “Now, with Nancy openly attacking her in the press, this just ices it.”

Kendall Jenner SUICIDE SHOCKER!

Heartbreak BEHIND TEEN'S ROMANCE

Mom Kris is concerned about daughter Kendall's new relationship with Julian Brooks

"KEEPING Up with the Kardashians" starlet Kendall Jenner's football hunk boyfriend is hiding a heartbreaking suicide secret!

On Aug. 11, 2008 – when Kendall's beau Julian Brooks was just 15 – his dad Dexter shot himself to death at the age of 47. Now, Kendall, 17, lives in fear that the same tragic end could await her 19-year-old beau.

"KENDALL IS totally smitten with Julian, and she's so terrified he might suffer the same fate that it keeps her up at night," revealed a source.

The two young lovebirds spent the Fourth of July with Kendall's family at dad Bruce Jenner's Malibu bachelor pad, where he's been staying since Kim Kardashian and baby North moved in with his wife Kris.

Meanwhile, Kendall and her little sister Kylie, 16, have been making waves with their wild summer partying at the ritzy beachside enclave.

"All hell has broken loose," said a source. "Neighbors find teens passed out in the sand and the beach is littered with beer cans, empty wine coolers and remnants of marijuana joints."

Still, August is said to be a tough time for Julian since it's the anniversary of his dad's death, and he continues to struggle with it. Adding to his problems, he was temporarily suspended from the University of Nevada-Reno football team this past summer for a "violation of team rules" before being reinstated.

And now Kardashian momager Kris Jenner apparently has worries about the romance.

"Kris is concerned because Julian's dad committed suicide," said another source. "She doesn't know what kind of mental problems he had and whether they could be hereditary."

by STEPHANIE WILBURN

Kendall and Julian met at Sierra Canyon school

THE Kardashian empire is in free-fall and heading for a rough landing!

With Kris Jenner's much-hyped FOX talk show savaged by critics, Kourtney facing a paternity challenge from a man who claims to be her son Mason's real dad, Khloe and Lamar Odom's marriage crumbling amid ongoing cheating allegations, and Kim falling under the control of domineering boyfriend Kanye West, a source says the family's $180 million fortune – as well as the Kardashian brand – is collapsing.

To top it off, President Obama recently blasted Kim and Kanye for their opulent lifestyle in an interview.

"The glory days are over for the Kardashians," said an insider. "They're overwhelmed with bad publicity, diminishing ratings, personal heartbreaks and even fan and viewer fatigue."

KIM – THE FAMILY'S BIGGEST moneymaker – has been holed up since the June 15 birth of her daughter, North, apparently trying to figure out a way to distance herself from what she sees as a sinking ship.

"Kanye has been pushing Kim to defect for a while," revealed the insider. "Now it's finally going to happen."

Kim, 32, hasn't made a public appearance since becoming a new mom except for a recorded video message, shot from her bust up and played on an episode of her mom's new talk show, "Kris." She also appeared in a three-second Internet video.

"Kanye is calling the shots now," explained the insider. "He doesn't want his baby mama seen until she's back in tip-top shape, and that's been a slow-going process."

As The ENQUIRER reported, Kim and Kanye's infant could have been a $250 million bonanza, with them earning $16 million from post-birth baby product endorsements, a birth special for the E! network and even a post-birth weight-loss deal for a big-name diet company. But Kanye didn't want any part of it, according to the insider. "He doesn't care about money – he refuses to sell his baby."

Meanwhile, the family momager's new show "Kris" has been slammed by critics, with one calling it "unwatchable" and "horrible, boring and self-involved." As The ENQUIRER has reported, Kris, 57, is also plagued by ongoing boozing and cheating allegations as well as her looming divorce battle from Bruce Jenner, her husband of 22 years.

Her daughter Kourtney, 34, isn't faring any better. She was recently slapped with a paternity lawsuit filed by male model Michael Girgenti, who claims that he's the true father

Scott Disick's paternity of son Mason has been challenged

Bruce Jenner showed up on his own for Kylie's birthday party of her 3-year-old son, Mason. Girgenti charges that he and Kourtney engaged in a torrid affair while she and longtime beau Scott Disick were on the outs. Kourtney claims they never had sex.

"Kourtney is inconsolable, and the lawsuit is creating more tension between her and Scott, who already have a highly volatile relationship," said the insider.

"Kourtney lashed out at her mom, screaming that she's sick of living her life in the spotlight and that this lawsuit never would have happened if they didn't make money off selling their private lives.

"Kourtney is ready to bail on the whole family business. She'd be content to be an anonymous stay-at-home mom."

AND 29-YEAR-OLD KHLÖE is said to be "on the verge of a breakdown" over recent claims that her husband of nearly four years, basketball player Lamar Odom, had a six-week affair this summer with lawyer Polina Polonsky. That comes hot on the heels of a published report charging that he also cheated with Jennifer Richardson, a woman he met in a strip club.

The scandal just adds to Khloë's heartache after her struggles with infertility, getting axed from her "X Factor" hosting gig and seeing her spinoff show, "Khloë & Lamar," put on indefinite hiatus.

The cracks in the once-tight family were evident at Kylie Jenner's recent 16th birthday bash at the Malibu restaurant Nobu on Aug. 10. Kris and Bruce were there, but came and left separately. Khloë brought two bodyguards but not Lamar. And Kim was noticeably absent, along with Kanye and baby North. But Kourtney, Scott and their two kids did turn up for the celebration despite their recent problems.

"The tide has completely turned against the Kardashians," noted the source.

"Kris always referred to her clan as America's royal family, but now they're more like a Greek tragedy."

STILL 'SLEEPLESS IN SEATTLE'

WHO says "Hollywood marriages don't last?"

Back in 1993, Loretta Healy fell in love with the romantic comedy "Sleepless in Seattle" and the houseboat where the lead character, played by Tom Hanks, lived with his young son.

In an incredible stroke of luck, Loretta and her husband Jim ended up making that houseboat their home, and 20 years later they still love it – and each other.

Their good fortune started when Loretta made a deal with Jim.

"I told him that I had gone to see 'Silence of the Lambs' with him, and he'd have to see 'Sleepless in Seattle' with me," Loretta, 71, told The ENQUIRER. "As we were watching the film, I poked him and said, 'I want to live in that houseboat.'"

BUT THERE WAS A HUGE problem. Loretta and her then-boyfriend Jim lived in New Jersey and had no plans to relocate to Seattle.

Then fate took a hand. Jim got a job interview in the Emerald City.

When they visited Seattle in the summer of 1993, Loretta stopped by the 2,100-square-foot, 4-bedroom houseboat and "I thought, 'This is where I'm going to live,'" said Loretta.

Soon afterward, Jim got a nearby job offer and took it.

Together, Loretta and Jim bought the beautiful floating home on Lake Union for about $550,000, and the couple tied the knot there six months later. Ever since, it's been clear sailing.

"I love the place," Loretta told The ENQUIRER. "It's really magical."

Good-natured Jim quips that he doesn't even mind being mistaken for Tom Hanks, noting that "I hear it all the time."

In 2008, Loretta and Jim were anticipating a permanent move to New York City and

INDECENT PROPOSAL

JOHNNY DEPP's romance with bisexual beauty Amber Heard is already on the rocks!

Sources say Amber, 27, resents the 50-year-old actor's controlling nature, and she's finding life with the "Lone Ranger" star to be boring.

Depp is so desperate to keep her, a source says he's even given the switch-hitting sexpot a green light to hook up with women.

"Johnny accepts the fact that Amber has other needs, so he's told her it's OK for her to be with women when she has the urge," an insider told The ENQUIRER. But Johnny and Amber are in a bad place right now.

"When they first started dating, he promised to help her become the next Angelina Jolie, but Johnny simply hasn't followed through.

"INSTEAD OF FINDING EXCITING projects for Amber, or introducing her to Tinseltown movers and shakers, he seems to block her from moving forward in her career.

"Apparently, she was offered the lead in the film version of the raunchy book '50 Shades of Grey,' but Johnny told her to say no to it because it would be too smutty."

The two met while co-starring in the 2009 film "The Rum Diary" and have been an item since Depp's 14-year love affair with French singer Vanessa Paradis ended in June 2012. But Johnny has kept Amber cooped up in his Hollywood mansion, and she hates it, according to the source.

"It was cute for a while," noted the source. "Amber liked cooking for Johnny and watching old movies with him. But now she's bored out of her mind."

The couple's troubles came to a head while they were on a press junket in Japan to promote "The

He gives lover green light TO ROMP WITH OTHER WOMEN

Lone Ranger," a box-office bomb that critics have mercilessly slammed.

"The whole trip was a disaster, and Johnny and Amber got into a huge fight on the flight home," said the source.

"She pointed out how much she's given up to be with him and admitted that she doesn't really care WHO Leo's baby mama is, just as long as she gets to be a granny ASAP!"

But Depp soon changed his tune, said the source.

"He promised Amber he'll make things more exciting for her, and he's still dangling the carrot of introducing her to agents and other key players," added the source.

"Amber's sticking around, hoping Johnny will be true to his word. But she's not going to wait much longer."

LEONARDO DICAPRIO is under pressure to have a baby because his mom is desperate to be a grandma! The "Titanic" heartthrob, 38, has been playing the field since splitting with supermodel Erin Heatherton last November. But his latest squeeze, 21-year-old German model Toni Garrn, may be just the woman to make the lifelong bachelor take the leap into fatherhood.

"Leo is quite smitten with Toni," revealed an insider. "She's just his type, and he's said quite seriously that she has the perfect genes for motherhood.

"TONI HAS BEEN MODELING since she was 13 and is very mature for her age, so it's not as crazy as it sounds. She's head over heels for Leo, so it wouldn't be a big shock if she went for it," says his mom's expectations are hilariously low," said the insider. "She just wants a grandkid to spoil and cuddle. Although Leo's cool with the concept of fatherhood, he's still shy about marriage because he's worried about losing a chunk of his fortune and precious art collection should it end in divorce."

Leo tries to spend a lot of time with his mom, 68, and she's said to have a huge influence on him.

"Irmelin really wanted him to marry Gisele (Bundchen) when they were dating a few years ago, but now it's clear she wants grandkids more than she wants a daughter-in-law," said the insider.

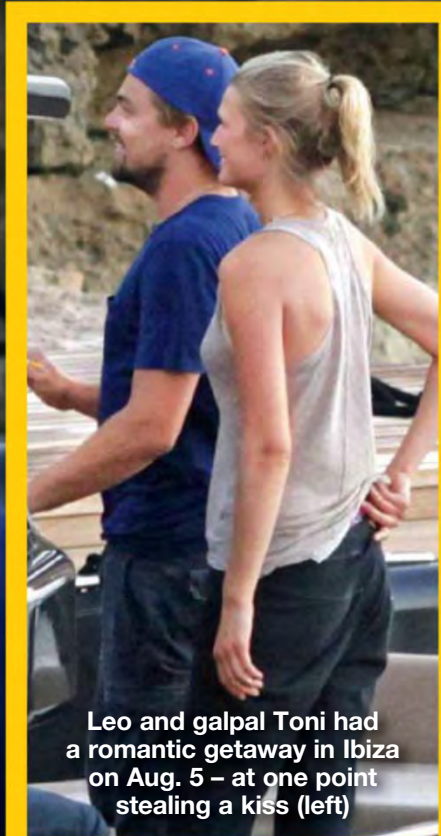

"And Leo's actually thinking

Leo and his mom have always shared a tight bond – he even fixed her up with her most recent boyfriend.

“LEO'S AN ONLY CHILD, SO it's not like Irmelin has other kids to focus on,” continued the insider. “Plus, she's getting older and he feels guilty for depriving her of that joy.”

Meanwhile, Leo and pretty blonde Toni were recently photographed locking lips while boating in a secluded spot on the Spanish island of Ibiza. They reportedly met at the Cannes Film Festival in May and have been frolicking around Europe for most of the summer.

“Whether it's with her or someone else,” said the insider, “Leo is deadly serious about having a baby and fulfilling his mom's baby dream.”

BRAD PITT'S TOO DUMB!

BRAD PITT may be as pretty as a picture, but he's been deemed not bright enough to serve on the board of L.A.'s Museum of Contemporary Art! The hunky "World War Z" star – a longtime enthusiast of culture and architecture – made an ambitious play for the MOCA position, but sources tell The ENQUIRER he doesn't stand a chance at landing the gig.

"Brad's always been a huge supporter of the museum, and it's undergoing a management shakeup," said a source.

"SO HE HAD SOMEONE FEEL OUT MEMBERS of the selection committee to see if they'd be interested in him participating at a higher level. While they admire Brad's ambition, I think the fear is that Brad might be a little on the dumb side to serve on an art board. He doesn't even have a college degree."

Dad-of-six Pitt, 49, dropped out of the University of Missouri to pursue his acting dream, and he's long dealt with whispers that he lives in the intellectual shadow of his 38-year-old partner Angelina Jolie, a United Nations Goodwill Ambassador.

Brad, Angelina and son Pax check out museum items

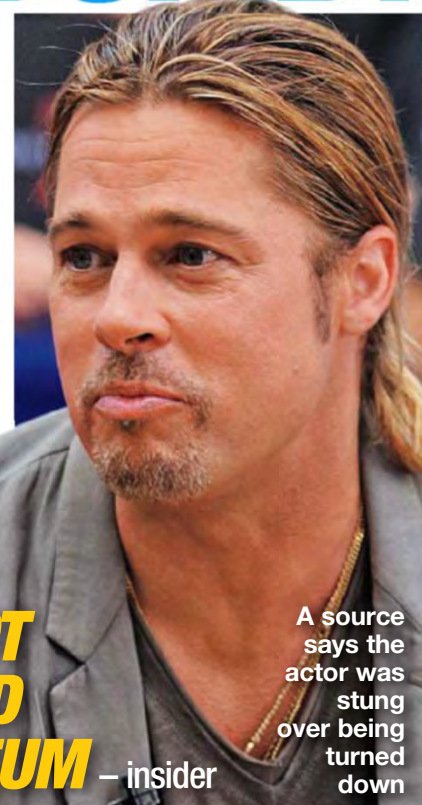

While Brad knew getting the museum job was a long shot, another source says he's still stung by the rejection.

"Brad has a huge art collection that's worth well over $25 million," said the second source. "He's been collecting pieces for years and studying up on the old masters. But just because he can buy art does not mean he can curate it. Good looks and fame are simply not enough to run a huge museum like the MOCA.

"Fortunately, I'm sure Brad will get over it."

were just trying to help someone, help someone calm down."

The incident made headlines when Ghent, a 36-year-old commercial production employee, showed up in a Los Angeles courtroom on Aug. 6 with a black eye to file a restraining order against Howard.

The couple was divorced in May, and Ghent maintained that Howard – starring as a shady neighbor who has an affair with Oprah's character in "Lee Daniels' The Butler" – turned violent after she told him that their effort to rekindle their romance had failed.

Ghent claimed that the "Iron Man" actor sucker-punched her in the face, grabbed her by the neck and threw her against a wall during a July 29 argument in a vacation rental home.

In a statement, Howard said Ghent was mentally unstable and had tried to commit suicide. He also said it was "no coincidence" that Ghent applied for a restraining order while he was promoting his latest film, "The Butler."

But it's not the first time Howard has faced spouse-beating charges.

AS THE ENQUIRER REPORTED IN October 2007, police said Howard was arrested for viciously assaulting his first wife, Lori McCommas, and punching her in the face.

According to a criminal complaint regarding the 2001 incident, Howard busted down a locked door to get at his terrified wife as she was on the phone to police calling for help.

During the incident, Howard showed up at McCommas' door after they argued over the phone. He was charged with assault, making terrorist threats and disorderly conduct. In 2002, he pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct.

"Terrence gets angry very fast and there is no talking him down," a family friend revealed. "The only reason he stopped beating up Lori in 2001 was because Howard's brother followed him and pulled him off of her!"

"And when the police showed up and asked Terrence what happened, he casually said he broke down the door and hit his wife, like this is no big deal."

FANS who watched the season finale of the “Real Housewives of Orange County” were shocked when Vicki Gunvalson’s son-in-law unleashed a vicious verbal tirade against the mother of another housewife.

But The ENQUIRER has learned it’s not the first time that U.S. Marine Ryan Culberson – who’s married to Vicki’s daughter, Briana – is alleged to have verbally abused and bullied a woman. According to court records obtained by The ENQUIRER, a woman that Culberson dated for four months in 2010 was so afraid of him she filed for a temporary restraining order.

ON THE AUG. 5 EPISODE OF “RHOC,” Ryan exploded at Lydia McLaughlin’s mother, Judy Stirling, during a party at Vicki’s house – because Judy had put her feet up on the couch. Ryan, 29, who lives with Briana in Vicki’s home, repeatedly cursed out the 65-year-old and told her “get the (bleep) out of this house.”

That was likely no surprise to Rachel Lawrence, 28, who claimed in her Request for Order for Protection that Ryan stalked, terrorized and verbally assaulted her after they broke up – claims

Ryan denied. The two later entered an agreement – which expires this month – in which Ryan promised to stay away from her, and each promised not to contact the other. She agreed to withdraw the request for restraining order as well as a complaint she filed with the USMC.

Now, a source says his explosive nature has the “RHOC” cast and crew on edge.

“Everyone on the show was shocked and disgusted by Ryan’s behavior,” added an insider. “People are scared of him. No one knows what will set him off.”

'HONEY BOO BOO' BRAIN DISORDER DRAMA

Mama June

Redneck clan falling apart
OVER SUGAR
BEAR'S
HEALTH CRISIS

THE "Here Comes Honey Boo Boo" clan is coming apart at the seams as family patriarch Mike "Sugar Bear" Thompson battles a mysterious brain disorder.

In early August, the redneck reality TV family – including Mama June and 7-year-old Alana – traveled to the Mayo Clinic in Jacksonville, Fla., where Sugar Bear, 41, underwent a battery of neurological tests.

Mama June, 33, appears to be devastated.

"She's a basket case," said a source. "They've had Sugar Bear in and out of the doctor's office and on different medications, but nothing has worked."

"SO FAR, MEDICAL EXPERTS are stumped as to what he's actually suffering from.

"For June, Alana and the other kids, not knowing has been the hardest part."

Just a few months ago, Sugar Bear was hospitalized after getting dizzy and passing out. Then, on a recent episode of their hit TLC show, Mama June and Sugar Bear were hashing out plans for their upcoming "commitment ceremony" when he started suffering from intense pain.

Sugar Bear was rushed to the hospital and admitted to the ICU, where he was diagnosed with pneumonia and pancreatitis. That's particularly dangerous for him since he's diabetic.

And now it seems there's something wrong with his brain. June has posted updates about Sugar Bear's battle on social media sites but has not disclosed what the problem might be. She has, however, indicated that she thinks it's not going to be good news.

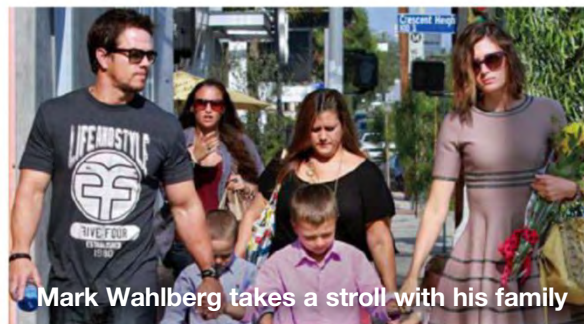

Last September, Sugar Bear was treated for a foot infection stemming from a mud-bogging incident. And around Christmas, he was rushed to the hospital after becoming sick during the family's holiday toy drive.

"It's been one thing after the other for the past six months," added the source. "Sugar Bear just doesn't take care of himself."

"He's never eaten healthy and has always chewed tobacco. June's biggest fear is that he could have a tumor on his brain."

Mark Wahlberg takes a stroll with his family

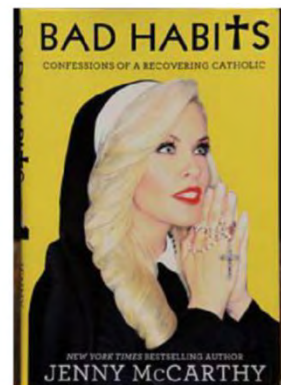

HOLLYWOOD's hottest brothers, Mark and Donnie Wahlberg, are locking horns over Donnie's red-hot romance with blonde bombshell Jenny McCarthy.

As the relationship between the former New Kids on the Block pop group member and the newly appointed "View" co-host heats up, a source says Mark – a reformed bad boy who's now a devout Catholic and devoted family man – is trying to convince his older brother that Jenny's nothing but bad news.

The outspoken TV personality is well-known for posing nude for "Playboy," using obscene language and writing books about sex. She even penned a best-seller questioning Ca-

It's back to school for pop diva Taylor Swift – with Oscar winner Julia Roberts as her teacher! The two bonded while filming the 2010 rom-com "Valentine's Day," sources say, and now 45-year-old Julia has taken Taylor, 23, under her wing.

"When they met, Julia was blown away by Taylor's talent and beauty," said a source. "They've stayed in casual touch, and Julia's three kids have become big fans of Taylor's music."

"JULIA SEES A LOT OF HER YOUNGER SELF IN Taylor, so she reached out to her recently to catch up and offer some life advice."

The "Pretty Woman" star – who dated a string of Hollywood Romeos before marrying cameraman Danny Moder – started out by offering dating tips to Taylor, who's also racked up an impressive list of romantic conquests.

"Julia's counseling Taylor on how to find the right guy and how to spot warning signs when relationships go bad," said the source. "She's even suggested that, in the future, Taylor steer clear of dating well-known singers and actors."

"Julia's also sharing her beauty tips, urging Taylor to take good care of her skin and try yoga to tone her body, calm her mind and help manage stress."

The "I Knew You Were Trouble" singer has also gotten some career advice from her mentor.

"Julia's urging Taylor to stay hungry and competitive but not let petty fights spill over into public," said the source.

"It's a case of Julia just trying to impart her hard-won wisdom to a kindred soul, and it's blossoming into a beautiful

SINGLE MOM BRISTOL'S BAR-HOPPING SPREE

SO much for family values! Party-hearty Bristol Palin has shipped off her 4-year-old son Tripp to Grandma Sarah in Arizona so she can go wild on the bar scene in Alaska, say sources.

"Since her son left last month, it's been nonstop partying and clubbing for Bristol," a family insider told The ENQUIRER.

"BRISTOL IS HITTING the local bars and acting like she's a single girl without a worry in the world."

Disclosed an eyewitness: "While Tripp is away, Bristol is at play. She's been a regular at the Mug-Shot Saloon in Wasilla and other bars in nearby Anchorage."

Bristol with 4-year-old son Tripp

Palin kid cuts loose after SHIPPING TRIPP OFF TO GRANDMA

To complicate matters, sources say the 22-year-old single mom has been making it difficult for baby daddy Levi Johnston, 23, to spend time with their little boy.

Levi, her former fiancé who married last year, was stunned a few weeks ago when Bristol told him she would be moving to Arizona with Tripp in September and returning to school.

Then, just days later, Bristol texted Levi that Tripp was already in Arizona with Mama Grizzly Sarah, the ex-governor of Alaska and former Republican vice-presidential candidate.

"Now Levi has no idea when he is going to see his son again," said the insider.

LIKE HER MOM, BRISTOL IS A FIRM advocate of family values and even writes a blog for the Family Channel, which she says is about "faith, family and being a mom."

But on Aug. 6 she posted recent photos online of Tripp swimming with Sarah's 5-year-old son Trig – and absentee mom Bristol was nowhere to be seen in the pictures.

It's not the first time Bristol has appeared to put her own needs first.

In 2010, she uprooted her then-21-month-old son from their Alaska home to compete on "Dancing with the Stars."

"Mama Grizzly" Sarah Palin

Bristol has also been the frequent requests she gets from Levi to spend time with Tripp – claiming the youngster needs to see the doctor or has other appointments, according to the insider, who added: "Bristol needs to realize that the only person who is going to suffer long-term from her game-playing is Tripp."

A GOSSIP website recently trumpeted the "exclusive" report that "Sopranos" star James Gandolfini's pricey watch was stolen shortly after his death.

BUT THAT WAS OLD NEWS TO ENQUIRER readers – we reported the ghoulish crime in our issue published just days after the 51-year-old actor passed away while vacationing in Italy on June 19.

As revealed by The ENQUIRER, Gandolfini was wearing the expensive timepiece when he suffered a fatal heart attack, but it later disappeared.

"Police in Rome are investigating the case," a source told The ENQUIRER at the time.

"Stealing a watch from a dead man is a terrible thing. Whoever did it should hang for it!"

The celebrity website TMZ finally caught up with the news on Aug. 7, reporting that Gandolfini's family has filed an insurance report on the missing watch.

2. DEEP-FRIED MEATLOAF Minnesota fairgoers can taste a classic favorite food taken to a whole new level – deep-fried meatloaf-on-a-stick. “The meatloaf is cooked in a local Minnesota red pepper wine glaze,” state fair communications supervisor Lara Hughes told The ENQUIRER. “It’s real comfort food.”

3. FRIED BANANA SPLIT Want to REALLY bust your diet? Try the Fried Banana Split! The vendors combine bananas, honey and peanut-butter balls, deep-fry them and top them off with powdered sugar, caramel and chocolate syrup, peanuts, whipped cream and ice cream bites with banana flavoring. Put a cherry on top and you’ve got a 2,000-calorie delight.

4. TWISTED YAM ON A STICK Here’s an interesting twist on fair food: the Twisted Yam on a Stick. Offered at the State Fair of Texas. A whole sweet potato is spiral-cut, pushed onto a 13-inch wooden skewer and deep-fried – of course! To add a few calories, it’s then rolled in butter and dusted with cinnamon. Yum!

5. FRIED CLUB SALAD Texas is also home to one of this year’s oddest offerings: Fernie’s Fried Club Salad. This gastronomical assault combines ham, chicken, shredded iceberg lettuce, carrots, cherry tomatoes, sharp cheddar cheese and bacon fried and served with croutons.

6. FRIED BEER You’d better have your ID ready if you want to sample these ravioli-looking dough pockets – that’s because they’re filled with beer! Available at the State Fair of Texas in Dallas, which runs from Sept. 27 through Oct. 20, these deep-fried salty little bites provide a burst of brew when you bite into them.

7. FRIED S'MORES POP-TARTS For those with a serious sweet tooth, the Deep Fried S’mores Pop-Tarts might be just the thing for you! These sugar bombs are stuffed with marshmallow, chocolate and peanut butter, then the Pop-Tart is deep-fried and drizzled with chocolate syrup and topped with whipped cream.

8. GRILLED GLAZED DONUT How can you possibly improve on the perfection of a glazed donut? How about throwing it on the grill and serving it up with a strawberry mint dipping sauce? You can thank the folks in Minnesota for this little piece of heaven.

9. FRIED MAC-N-CHEESE SLIDER Cheese fans will cheer the Fried Mac-N-Cheese Slider – a three-cheese baked macaroni battered in bread crumbs and deep fried, then plopped on a bun with a slider-size hamburger patty. “It’s like an ultimate cheeseburger,” Sally Warme, fair spokesperson, told The ENQUIRER.

GET LOST LAUER

– and take Kathie Lee with you!

MATT LAUER should pack his “Today” show bags – and take Kathie Lee Gifford with him!

That’s the opinion of staffers at the once-invincible NBC morning show after nine jobs reportedly were slashed in recent budget cuts while Matt kept his $21.5 million annual salary.

Irate staffers are also attacking Kathie Lee, who rallied them into signing a letter of support for host Matt as ratings plunged.

“Many members of the ‘Today’ staff would like nothing more than to have their names stricken from that letter,” said a source.

“They’d like to see both Matt and Kathie Lee ridden out on a rail!”

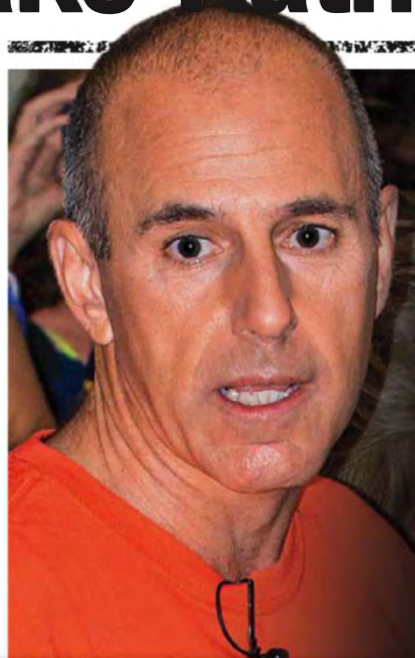

“One staffer told me, ‘A lot of people here feel betrayed. We all signed that letter, but when the shoe was on the other foot, Matt did nothing to support us.’”

EARLIER THIS YEAR, Matt, 55, was roundly blamed for engineering the firing of his former “Today” co-host Ann Curry.

Kathie Lee – co-anchor of “Today’s” fourth hour with Hoda Kotb – was so fed up with the criticism that she drafted a letter of support for Matt in April.

She collected signatures from the “Today” cast and crew, including Matt’s co-host Savannah Guthrie, “Today” weatherman Al Roker and fill-in co-host Willie Geist.

“We all wanted to say something to Matt, and nobody wanted to put him in a position that would make him uncomfortable,” Kathie Lee said at the time. “So unbeknownst to anyone higher up at ‘B’ I just started this thing.”

Kathie Lee, 60, planned to pay for a full-page ad and publish it in a national newspaper, but later canned the idea at Matt’s request.

Matt called the gesture “very sweet” and described Kathie Lee as

He told “Tonight” show host Jay Leno: “She’s kind and compassionate... I just started this thing.”

My mother always told me in times of adversity, you find out who your friends are. Kathie Lee’s a great friend.”

Adding fuel to the staffers’ ire, published reports earlier this summer described

Matt embraces pal Kathie Lee

Matt as demeaning and dismissive toward them. Besides that, rival “Good Morning America” recently beat “Today” in the May sweeps for the first time in nearly two decades.

Desperate to restore “Today” to its glory days, Matt has reportedly been treating staff members to lunch at least twice a week at his favorite Manhattan restaurant.

“Matt wants to hear from producers and other staffers about story ideas, concerns they have or any other issues,” said a source.

Despite that olive branch, staffers feel the so-called “Alpha Host” is vulnerable, and they’d like to see Matt hit the road, along with Kathie Lee.

“Everyone at ‘Today’ has not only had it up to here with Matt,” said the source, “they’re disgusted with her too.”

■ GAY AFFAIRS ■ DRUGS ■ SEX SCANDALS

IN a bombshell sure to shake the Church of Scientology to its core, The ENQUIRER has learned the controversial religion maintains a hidden vault that contains the darkest secrets of its most famous members, including Tom Cruise, John Travolta and defector Leah Remini!

The vault is housed in a mountain fortress disguised as a church “welcome center” in a remote area of New Mexico, and The ENQUIRER has obtained aerial “spy photos” of the never-before-seen stronghold.

Scientology experts say the vault contains audio and video confessions of members’ drug use, gay scandals, divorces, illicit affairs and other explosive secrets that could destroy their careers!

“There’s no question that Scientology has damaging videotapes and audiotapes of top celebrity members revealing their most personal secrets,” Scientology expert Margery Wakefield, a former high-ranking member of the church, told The ENQUIRER.

“The church holds these tapes as an insurance policy, and the vault in New Mexico is one of the places where they’re kept.

“If Tom Cruise or John Travolta were ever to defect, the church could drag these tapes out of the vault and use them.”

The 43-acre New Mexico facility, located in the tiny community of Tremontina, is officially known as “CST,” or the “Church of Spiritual Technology,” Wakefield said.

IT WAS BUILT TO HOUSE Scientology’s most sensitive material and is protected by elaborate high-tech security.

Few Scientologists are even aware of the facility, and non-Scientologists are banned. But it was investigated by former Las Vegas, N.M., Police Chief Tim Gallegos, to ease locals’ fears.

“I visited the base to dispel rumors there were cameras in the trees and hidden sharpshooters waiting to kill anyone who entered,” Gallegos told The ENQUIRER.

He described the vault as a “giant time capsule.”

“They’re transferring writings, speeches and videos onto paper or etching them onto titanium plates,” he said.

“The house next to the vault had a small kitchen and living area, but there was no phone, TV, or Internet. "There's a Welcome Center, which they described as a 'retreat,' but it was pretty barren."

Chillingly, Gallegos was not allowed to see certain areas. "It felt like they were hiding something," he told The ENQUIRER. "I was suspicious of the whole thing. It was sinister."

Internal Revenue Service records show that Scientology spent up to $13 million in 1992 to preserve church founder L. Ron Hubbard's writings on 1.8 million steel discs and record his lectures on 187,000 nickel plates at the site.

And Wakefield confirms it's the ideal place to store audio and video recordings of the "audits" conducted on celebrity members such as Cruise, Travolta, Lisa Marie Presley, Kirstie Alley and former "King of Queens" star Remini, who recently quit the church and is writing a scathing book about it.

"Scientology secretly videotapes and audiotapes 'auditing' sessions behind celebrities' backs," said Wakefield.

of the books "Damaged Lives: The Legacy of Scientology," "The Road To Xenu: Life Inside Scientology," and "Understanding Scientology."

"Tapes of the sessions have been transcribed, and there's no doubt that in Tom's case, his darkest secrets were exposed during those sessions.

"A member of the inner circle recently assured me that the church has all of Tom's sex secrets."

For years, a Scientology staffer reportedly provided Scientology leader David Miscavige with detailed, daily reports about the Cruise household, former officials said.

Later, Cruise – without his knowledge or consent – was reportedly secretly videotaped via cameras hidden in a lamp and a piece of furniture during his "auditing sessions."

THOSE TAPES WERE ALSO personally delivered to Miscavige, according to former Scientologist Claire Headley. The church has previously denied that it audiotaped or videotaped without the subjects' consent.

"I know he did it with (the reports of) Lisa Marie Presley, back in '95, when she was married to Michael Jackson, and I know he did it a number of times with Kirstie Alley," revealed another former Scientology member.

Cruise's ex-wife Katie Holmes was also audited, sources say, and the church has those tapes as well.

As for Travolta, a former top official confirms Scientology used secret files to persuade Travolta to stay with the church after he threatened to leave Scientology in the early 1980s to marry his gay boyfriend in what would have been a sex scandal.

"Because of my position, I knew specifically what was said in certain auditing sessions," Jesse Prince – who claims he was the church's second highest ranking official when he left in 1992 after 16 years – told The ENQUIRER.

"I can confirm that John Travolta once threatened that he was going to marry his boyfriend.

"There's no question (Scientology) had a lot on John's gay activities and used it to keep him from leaving – and to keep him in line."

THE CLAIM ORIGINALLY SURFACED in a book by Pulitzer-prize winning author Lawrence Wright, which a church spokesperson characterized as "six decades of false, bizarre allegations about the religion's Founder, its leadership and its prominent members."

Tapes in the New Mexico vault may also include ex-"Cheers" star Kirstie Alley's and drug past, The ENQUIRER h
And Scientology sources reveal that Lisa Marie Presley confessed secrets about her marriages to Michael Jackson and actor Nicolas Cage, and subsequent divorces, along with her drug use, during auditing sessions.

Meanwhile, Remini has announced plans to write an explosive tell-all about her time in Scientology.

"It will include my experiences, everything that's taboo to talk about," she recently told a reporter.

Wakefield continued: "Right now the church is trying to smear Leah for defecting, but the stakes are much higher for well-known celebrities.

"People like Tom Cruise, John Travolta and Kirstie Alley are worth a lot of money to Scientology – and that's why the vault in New Mexico is protected like Fort Knox!"

Scientology's

A church representative stated that the New Mexico archive contains only L. Ron Hubbard's writings and lectures.

"The church treats the secrets of parishioners imparted to it as sacrosanct," the representative stated. "It never discloses them."

Lisa Marie
counseled
Leah by phone

LISA MARIE PRESLEY has vowed to stand by Scientology defector Leah Remini, but sources say devout church members John Travolta and his wife have cut all ties with the former "King of Queens" star.

After 43-year-old Leah quit the controversial religion in July, Lisa Marie, 45 – who reportedly abandoned the church in May 2012 – counseled her by phone, say sources.

"Lisa Marie called Leah and they talked for nearly two hours," revealed a friend. "She welcomed her to the club – the club of getting your life back.

"She also advised Leah to 'find a small group of friends you can count on and hold them close.'"

That circle isn't likely to include Travolta and wife Kelly Preston, who fear daughter Ella Bleu, 13, may quit Scientology after family friend Leah's defection, sources say. Although Scientology officials deny that the church asks members to "disconnect" from people who leave the church, a source said: "When John and Kelly told Ella that she wasn't allowed to contact, see or speak to Leah ever again, Ella was devastated."

When Ella remained confused at Scientology's apparent cruelty in cutting off Leah, her parents decided to find a church minder for her, said the source. And the Scientology guardian stayed close to Ella while the teen attended singer Tony Bennett's 87th birthday bash with her father in Beverly Hills on Aug. 3.

"John and Kelly have tried to reassure Ella that she's doing the right thing," said the source, "but she's still angry that she can't see Leah."

'Queen of Sole' MURDERED

JUSTIN SMITH
Cops saw him fleeing the scene

DARLENE Flynn, who held the Guinness record for owning the most shoes in the world, was found battered to death in her swimming pool – and her young ex-boyfriend was arrested for murder.

"She was a wonderful, wonderful woman," said her close friend Lenore Rice. "If you were depressed or in a bad mood, Darlene would take your mind off it and take you to her place – which was happy."

"She had a smile that would light up a room. All her friends are devastated."

Darlene, 58, was featured in The ENQUIRER's Feb. 8, 2010, issue as the "Queen of Sole." She had then collected 12,500 shoes and shoe-related items – which had grown to an incredible 15,000, worth more than $500,000 at the time of her death.

"I JUST LOVE SHOES, AND IT kind of got out of control," Darlene told us then.

Every inch of her house in Menifee, Calif., was crammed with shoes. She started the collection following a divorce in 2001. By 2006, she had 7,765 items and made the "Guinness World Records" book.

Among her more famous items were Dorothy's ruby shoes from "The Wizard of Oz," an array of Betty Boop footwear and Barbie heels by the bundle.

She had wooden shoes, cloth shoes, antique shoes, a shoe made from the volcanic ash of Mount St. Helens and about a hundred pairs of her own size 8 shoes that she actually wore.

She also had shoe ornaments, shoe pillows, shoe spoons, shoe purses, shoe pins, shoe pictures and even

Darlene Flynn held the Guinness record for the biggest shoe collection shoes for her dogs Shoesy-Q and Bootsy Shoebert.

But it apparently all came to an end due to her heel of an ex-beau. On July 22, officers from the Menifee Police Department responded to a domestic disturbance at Darlene's home after receiving reports of a man and woman yelling.

Authorities say they arrived to see a shirtless Justin Smith, 29, Darlene's former boyfriend, fleeing from the home. Cops soon found Darlene's body with blunt force trauma injuries

ARRESTED!

The "Shoe Lady" and her "cowboy" had a volatile relationship, says a friend in the backyard swimming pool and arrested Smith.

"I remember vividly the night Darlene met Justin," said her friend Lenore. "He was a tall, good-looking cowboy-type who asked her to dance again and again."

"Three days later she called me and said, 'My cowboy's still here!'"

"He was living with his parents at the time, working any job he could find – construction one day, cleaning stables another day, any kind of manual work. They had a volatile relationship, but the romance was over."

"The one thing that Darlene liked as much as her shoes was to dance. It breaks my heart to know that I won't see my dear friend the 'Shoe Lady' dancing ever again."

DRESSED to THRILL

MILEY CYRUS

The “We Can’t Stop” singer won three Teen Choice Awards, and she “twerks” her bad girl image in Saint Laurent’s edgy $990 leather bra and $8,350 buckled leather skirt.

KERRY WASHINGTON

It’s all about lip service for the saucy “Scandal” star. Kerry matches her lip color to the embroidered kisses on her Stella McCartney mini. Spiky Christian Louboutin pumps add spice.

HOLLAND RODEN

Happy, happy! I’m all smiles at the “Teen Wolf” cutie’s sunshiny Notte by Marchesa frock. The lace overlay that falls into an on-trend peplum adds a sweet ladylike touch.

JORDIN SPARKS

Yes, stripes can be slimming – and the talented former “American Idol” winner proves it in an awesome blue and white Bebe number with both vertical and horizontal stripes.

Oprah hasn't appeared in a film since 1998

Oprah with Forest Whitaker in her new film, "Lee Daniels' The Butler"

“I'd say she wins Best Supporting Actress. She's that good!”

O PRAH WINFREY is on top of the world again!

With critics raving about her “mesmerizing” performance in “Lee Daniels’ The Butler,” showbiz insiders are betting that the multitasking entertainer will finally capture the ultimate Hollywood prize that has eluded her – an Academy Award.

What’s more, Oprah’s once-struggling OWN TV network is turning a profit, and Forbes estimates that between June 2012 and June 2013 the media mogul earned a whopping $77 million.

BUT IT’S OPRAH’S showstopping performance in “Lee Daniels’ The Butler” that is winning America’s heart all over again.

“People were crying through this movie,” declared veteran entertainment columnist Roger Friedman. “Oprah gets a scene-stealing Oscar moment that is going to take her right into every awards show. If I had to bet now, I’d say she wins Best Supporting Actress. She’s that good!”

In the deeply touching movie, inspired by a true story, Oprah plays

Actress in Steven Spielberg’s “The Color Purple.”

The 59-year-old daytime TV legend – who ended her popular syndicated gabfest in May 2011 – told the “New York Times” she was winding up the show when director Lee Daniels called to say he had a part for her in the film.

Although she was tremendously busy launching her OWN network – which turned a profit in the first half of 2013, six months ahead of schedule – she said it represented “something bigger than ourselves.”

Oprah flourished with the star-studded cast, which includes Mariah

AND SHE WASN’T PUT OFF WHEN Viola Davis, star of the 2011 hit “The Help,” told Oprah she’d been criticized by other black people for playing a servant, like Oprah’s screen husband. Oprah saw it in a totally different light, telling an interviewer that playing a servant like a maid was OK “because it happened, and none of us would be here were it not for them.”

“My mother was a maid, my grandmother was a maid, her mother was a maid.”

In fact, she says the secret of her incredible success is just being herself and treating everyone the same. Meanwhile, as she approaches the big 6-0, she says she’s healthier and happier than ever.

“I don’t understand women lying about their age and everybody dreading getting older,” she mused. “To deny your age is to deny your life. Life, aging, moving forward is so important.”

Avoid KNEE SURGERY

★ Surgery is common for people with torn knee ligaments, but a new study suggests that not everyone needs it.

Evaluating the structure of the damaged knee can determine who is best suited to undergo the knife and who may be able to avoid reconstruction, say researchers at New York City's Hospital for Special Surgery.

If X-rays show that the knee is still stable despite the injury, surgical repair may not be required.

JUST MISBEHAVING?

★ Are disruptive students just being naughty, or do they have a medical condition?

A new device, recently approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, measures brain function to help assess children with attention deficit hyperactivity disorder.

The noninvasive test, used on kids and adolescents 6 to 17, measures two types of brain waves, and the ratio between the two are different in those with ADHD.

Combined with other clinical information, the new system “may help health care providers more accurately determine if ADHD is the cause of a behavioral problem,” says FDA expert Christy Foreman.

★ There's been a breakthrough in anti-aging therapy – human growth hormone in a pill!

Human growth hormone is already known to help aging people maintain, or even recapture, youthful attributes by aiding cell repair, boosting metabolic rate and stimulating lean muscle growth – but up until recently it's only been administered by costly injections.

Now, SeroVital offers similar benefits in a pill at a fraction of the cost. In fact, in a double-blind, placebo-controlled study, SeroVital increased HGH levels by a whopping 682 percent.

For more information on purchasing this remarkable supplement, go to SeroVital.com.

Quick FIBROMYALGIA DIAGNOSIS

★ It can take years to diagnose the chronic pain syndrome fibromyalgia, but a new finger-stick blood test could dramatically speed up the process.

Ohio State University scientists used a high-powered, specialized microscope to recognize and detect fibromyalgia's molecular pattern – and experts say the still-experimental technique could eventually shave five years off the wait for a definitive diagnosis.

“The importance of producing a faster diagnosis cannot be overstated because patients experience tremendous stress during the diagnostic process,” says Dr. Kevin Hackshaw of Ohio State's Wexner Medical Center. “Just getting the diagnosis actually makes patients feel better.”

★ Premenopausal women with high blood levels of certain sex hormones have an increased risk of breast cancer, suggests a new study.

Although the link between higher hormone levels and breast cancer has been well-established in older, postmenopausal women, researchers at Britain's University of Oxford have now linked those same hormone levels with the risk of women developing breast cancer before age 50.

The investigators caution that more research is needed before doctors can use sex hormone levels to determine the risks in younger women.

CRYPTOGRAM QUOTES

FAMOUS QUOTES FROM YOUR FAVORITE PEOPLE

Cryptograms are coded messages. To solve the Cryptogram, each coded letter must be replaced by the answer letter in the box overhead. When you solve the code for a letter, write the answer letter in the box everywhere the coded letter appears. Look for common words and letter patterns to break the code. Words like AND, I, THE and A are found frequently. Common word endings are ING, S and E.

Devious Maids

Sunday, Aug. 25, 10 p.m. ET, Lifetime

There's plenty of dirt and surprises tonight for "DM" fans. Remi (Drew Van Acker) returns from rehab and asks Valentina's (Edy Ganem) parents' permission to date her. Alexandro (Matt Cedeno) introduces Carmen (Roselyn Sanchez) to his latest love, which comes as quite a shock. Taylor (Brianna Brown) is pregnant! Rosie (Dania Ramirez) wants Spence (Grant Show) to defend her honor after Adrian (Tom Irwin) propositions her. And Marisol (Ana Ortiz) not only discovers that her son was involved in illegal activities before he was arrested for murder, but also who the real guilty party might be. Susan Lucci, Judy Reyes, Brett Cullen and Mariana Klaveno also star.

Covert Affairs

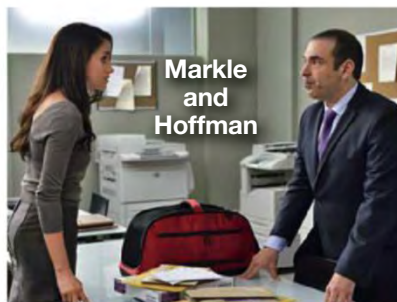

Tuesday, Aug. 27, 9 p.m. ET,
USA Network

Tonight's mission is a must for "Affairs" aficionados as some top secrets are spilled along the way. Annie (Piper Perabo) flies off with elite deep-cover operative Teresa Hamilton (guest star Michelle Ryan) to recover stolen missiles and halt an illegal weapons operation. Meanwhile, Auggie (Christopher Gorham) tackles his past demons and recalls how he lost someone dear to him during a mission. Could the same thing happen to Annie? And Calder (Hill Harper) gets more suspicious of Annie when some new info comes his way. Packed full of intel and intrigue plus some breathtaking action, this episode delivers the "Covert" goods.

Suits

Tuesday, Aug. 27, 10 p.m. ET,
USA Network

Harvey's (Gabriel Macht) fury is fully unleashed when he learns that his nemesis, Stephen, from the London firm has been sabotaging Ava's murder trial. On the lighter side, Louis (Rick Hoffman) falls so in love with Nigel's cat that he asks Rachel (Meghan Markle) to defend him in a wonderfully staged and very entertaining mock trial over custody of the kitty. It may have started with the gimmick of a lawyer without a law degree becoming a top flight New York attorney, but this show is now fast becoming one of TV's finest and most enjoyable legal dramas all on its own.

Duck Dynasty

Wednesday, Aug. 28, 10 p.m. ET, A&E

Tonight, our favorite muddy millionaires help honorary Robertson family member John Godwin pick up a hot tub from the junkyard. This tub is so nasty looking that even Jase – who spends all of his time in the woods covered in mud and face paint – thinks it's gross! Meanwhile, Robertson patriarch Phil and his wife Kay give their grandkids Sadie and John Luke another pioneer cooking lesson. This time the recipe is for mayhaw berry jelly. Well, at least it's a break from the squirrel and frog skinning that the kids usually have to suffer through on this wild and funny backwoods family series.

HASSELBECK WALTERS

ELISABETH HASSELBECK is steaming over the lackluster farewell she got on her last day on "The View" – especially after seeing the star-studded sendoff Joy Behar received just a few weeks later!

And the worst part for Elisabeth? After her former boss Barbara Walters only gave her a scant few minutes to say her goodbyes on July 10, she didn't even invite Elisabeth back for Joy's hour-long goodbye bash on Aug. 9.

"Elisabeth is fuming over this latest snub from Barbara," said a source. "It's no secret that politically conservative Elisabeth wasn't afraid to publicly stand up to Barbara's liberal points of view."

"That's grated on Barbara's nerves and obviously reached a boiling point this past year.

"Now Elisabeth feels the very minor going-away tribute given to her, versus the spectacle bestowed upon Barbara's good friend Joy, was just another public dig to embarrass her."

Up until Elisabeth, 36, announced her departure from the show after serving as co-host for 10 years, rumors were running wild that Barbara was going to give her the ax.

"Elisabeth is no dummy," the source continued. "She saw the writing on the wall and quickly got another job at FOX News before Barbara had the chance to fire her."

According to the source, the 83-year-old news legend didn't like Elisabeth beating her to the punch and retaliated by black-listing her from any future appearances on the show.

"Elisabeth outsmarted Barbara, and Barbara couldn't stand it," added the source. "As far as Barbara is concerned, Elisabeth's last day on the show was her last day ever."

Barbara and Elisabeth clashed over political views, said a source again!

WHOOPI GOLDBERG better mind her face! A producer on "The View" has warned the show's expressive moderator to "curb her stink eye, rolling eyes and the funny faces" she makes every time host Barbara Walters sticks her foot in her mouth, said a source.

Goldberg's

apparently had to lay down the law to Whoopi after receiving complaints from producers that her "dramatic expressions" were rude and disrespectful to the 83-year-old news legend.

"Whoopi was told to stop, but it's hard for her," said the insider. "She feels that Barbara says so many odd things she can't help reacting."

BASKETBALL legend Magic Johnson and his wife are urging their openly gay son to just say "no" to reality TV!

Earvin Johnson III, known as EJ, has been swamped with TV offers since coming out of the closet, sources say. But his parents fear he'll be made to look foolish or, even worse, become the target of death threats.

"Magic and (his wife) Cookie say they're very proud of EJ, but they're also realistic," said a family friend.

PROTECTIVE FAMILY: EJ, Magic, Cookie and Elisa

"THEY KNOW THERE ARE FOLKS out there who still hate gay people, and it would break their hearts to hear their son got attacked or even injured just for being himself."

Now a junior at New York University, the flamboyant 21-year-old has said that he told his family he was gay when he was about 13. He was outed on the Internet in April, and while he got public support, EJ says that he also received nasty and threatening e-mails.

And that's got his parents – who also have daughter Elisa – worried sick.

"Magic knows firsthand how horrible the public can be," said the family friend.

"After revealing that he was HIV-positive in 1991, he was ridiculed by the public, and some NBA players protested when he played before his final retirement.

"To this day, he still gets derogatory comments about his sexuality.

"Magic and Cookie want to protect EJ so he doesn't experience the same hurtful things they did. They're hoping he takes their advice to continue to live his life to the fullest – just not on TV."

Michelle is insecure

Michelle Obama acted in a very undignified way for a first lady by banning Kerry Washington from the White House (Michelle Wins Tug-Of-Love, July 22). Too bad she's so insecure about her husband. She should be savvy enough to keep her jealousy under control.

Get with it, Dr. Laura

Regarding "Dr. Laura Badmouths Moms" (July 22): What century is this woman from? Gone are the days when moms could stay at home. The average family needs two incomes and that's even a struggle. Jobs are scarce, and to keep one, you have to give your all.

HOW TO PLAY

You must fill in every empty square in the Sudoku grid. There's no right way of going about this, but there is only ever one solution. The big grid is split into nine mini-grids. There are nine rows running left to right and nine columns running down. In every row, you must have each of the numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9. These can be in any order. The same applies to columns and mini-grids: place every number 1 through 9 in each column and in each mini-grid.

'Burn Notice' sparks grisly FACEBOOK KILLING

Bit player murders wife after series folds

AN insane obsession with the TV spy show "Burn Notice" led wannabe actor Derek Medina to allegedly gun down his beautiful young wife and post a shocking, headline-making photo of her bullet-riddled body on Facebook, sources told The ENQUIRER.

A total loser, Medina was repeatedly fired from a series of menial jobs but desperately clung to his fantasy of becoming a star after appearing on the action-packed drama just once for a few seconds more than three years.

Derek identified himself on Facebook as an actor, bragged to pals about his big plans and flew into a rage at his Miami home on Aug. 8, say sources, after his fed-up wife, Denny's waitress Jennifer Alfonso, told him: "You'll never be an actor! You're worthless! You'll never amount to anything!"

THE HOT-HEADED, HEAVILY tattooed creep – who claimed to be a neighborhood watch volunteer and reportedly always carried a gun – responded with a deadly blast of bullets, even though Jennifer's 10-year-old daughter Isabella was nearby.

Then, like a hunter showing off a prized kill, the twisted fiend coldheartedly posted a photo of his wife's body on Facebook with a post saying: "I'm going to prison or death sentence for killing my wife...Facebook people you will see me in the news."

Sources told The ENQUIRER that

Medina (circled) had one nonspeaking part as a thug on the TV show crew of the show for rejecting him, but when he recently learned it had ceased production, he allegedly re-directed his rage at his long-suffering

After his arrest, Derek – dressed in a sleeveless undershirt shockingly similar to the one he'd worn on the show – claimed that the final confrontation turned deadly because 26-year-old Jennifer was punching him and grabbed a knife. But her friend Amada told The ENQUIRER: "He's lying – he's a monster!"

"Jennifer was peaceful and always avoided confrontation. She would never, ever pull a knife on him, especially with her daughter in the house."

She added that Derek was the violent one in the relationship.

"Jennifer came to work with huge bruises and scratches on her arms and neck, and one time with a bite mark on her face," said Amada. "She had massive bruises on her hip and stomach from where he kicked her."

"He was some kind of cop-wannabe. Once, he pulled a gun on a girl at a rock concert because she'd spilled beer on Jennifer."

Sadly, that rage apparently led to a horrific tragedy that's likely to scar Jennifer's daughter for life.

"Isabella must have seen what happened," Jennifer's tearful grandmother Marisia Alfonso told The ENQUIRER. "She was alone in that apartment with her mother's body for over an hour. It's horrible!"

by JOHN BLOSSER

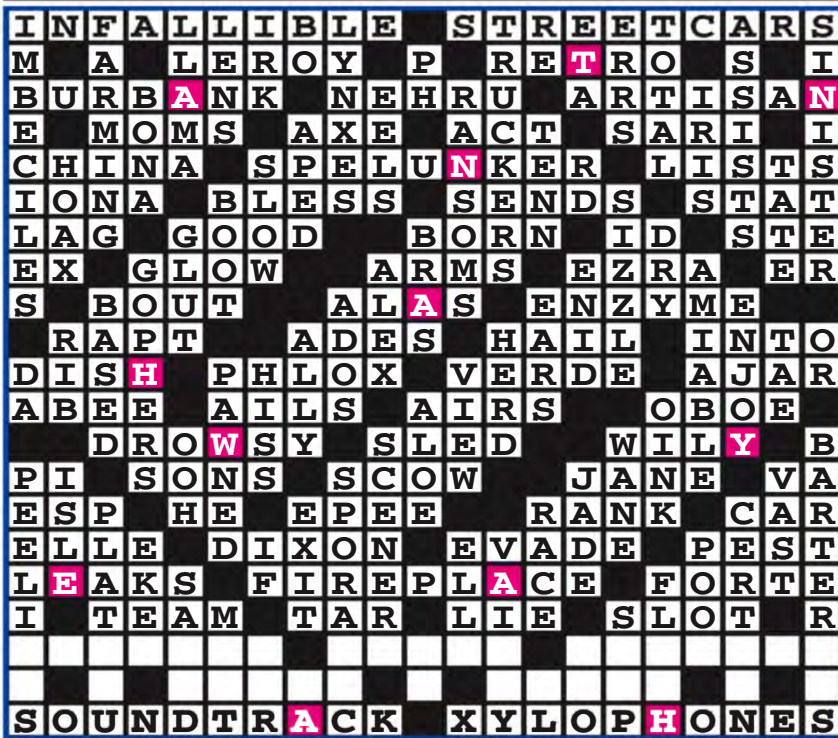

jblosser@nationalenquirer.com

Derek, 31, had a hair-trigger temper and had been nursing a long-standing grudge against "Burn Notice" for turning down his constant pleas to reappear on the show.

"He always dreamed that his one walk-on bit part, playing a street thug, would open a big acting career for him, but he was just some guy they grabbed off the street for an extra role with no lines," Amada Cooper, Jennifer's close friend and boss at Denny's, told The ENQUIRER.

Police theorize that Derek was planning a deadly payback on the cast and

CARING CANINE

CHUCK WEINTRAUB is a true-blue dog lover who's spent the past several years fostering abused and neglected canines that no one else wanted.

He's dedicated to saving the dogs' lives, but he never expected that one of the pups he rescued would save him – until Chloe came along.

THE TERRIER MIX WAS A MESS before Chuck, who fosters dogs for the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society, took her into his home in Cranberry Township, Pa.

Gretchen Fieser, a spokesperson for the organization, told The ENQUIRER: "She was turned in because her former owner couldn't take care of her. She had mange and was in a lot of pain. She had no hair and her skin was pink and inflamed."

She'd also been traumatized.

"When we first got her, she was so terrified she'd put her paws over her eyes and pretend the world wasn't there when she was stressed," said Chuck. "That's canines that takes the pooch's heroic actions all that more incredible. The scrappy little mutt sprang into action when Chuck, 59, collapsed while mowing the grass at his home. As he lay on the ground unconscious, Chloe, who'd only lived with Chuck and his wife for six weeks, bolted down the family's long driveway and crossed the street to neighbor Mike Brock's house, where she began barking.

"As soon as I saw her at our fence, to do with us before," said Mike.

Concerned the dog might get hit by a car, Mike tried to leash her.

But as soon as I got close, she'd take off, but only a little way, and then she'd wait for me," he said. "She was obviously trying to get me to follow her, but I couldn't understand why."

At least he couldn't understand until he saw Chuck lying on the lawn. At that point, Mike yelled to his wife to call 911, and another neighbor, registered nurse Charleen Deneen, began administering CPR.

Throughout all the frantic attempts to revive Chuck, Chloe stayed by his side, her face just inches away from his. Chuck spent several days in the hospital and is now home.

"Chloe knew Chuck was in trouble and she was determined to save him," noted Gretchen. "She repaid him for all his kindness by saving his life. It's amazing."

Chloe has now regained her health and is up for adoption. Chuck made the tough decision not to keep her so she could find other dogs in need.

ENQUIRER readers who are interested in giving Chloe a forever home can call the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society at 412-321-4625 or visit their website, www.wpahumane.org.
